The mindful approach to PSHE
18-12-2024

Welcome to the Autumn Term edition of PDN!

We'd like to start our first edition this year by introducing some of our new PSHE Ambassadors! The Ambassadors have a strong understanding of how PSHE works at Camrose and know the various themes we are focusing on throughout the year. The children are happy to help their peers and adults, to discuss any ideas they might have and offer support understanding some of the routines and topics. Children promote positive behaviour and show great team spirit.

The recent (July 2024) Ofsted report states that: "Behaviour in lessons and around the school is exemplary. This is because pupils understand the 'good to be green' system that helps to ensure positive and respectful relationships exist between pupils and staff. This contributes to pupils feeling safe and being kept safe in school."

"Behaviour is exceptional. This is because expectations of pupils are made clear. From the beginning of early years onwards, children learn what it means to behave well."

We are delighted that our children feel safe at Camrose and are very happy and keen to come to school.

The recently carried out Bully Ballot not only had given children an opportunity to voice their opinion in a democratic way, but also reassured staff and parents that our pupils feel that they are being listened to by all trusted adults involved in their learning journey and they feel safe and valued at all times.

The week beginning the 14th of November was Anti-bullying week.

The assemblies that week focused on what bullying really is and how it can affect us. Most importantly, how to reach out and deal with a bully.

Parents were also invited to a workshop, where they were shown what we teach about bullying and how we deal with any bullying situations that might occur. Parents were reassured that bullying is not tolerated at Camrose and staff is working continuously to encourage children to make connections, build bridges, make friends, connect in a positive way and get support when and if and when needed.

Here is a selection of work our pupils have completed during their PSHE lessons. Let's celebrate their work ☺

Well done Camrose for raising £398 for 'Children in Need'. Year on year, it is pleasing to see our families being generous and supporting this significant cause.

International Children in Need Day is a special day to raise awareness of children's rights and well-being around the world.
